Foreword

Dear Applicant,

Thank you for your interest in becoming a member of my Cultural Leadership Board.

London is full of some of the most forward thinking, visionary and passionate cultural leaders in the world. I am now seeking to add more of our city's leading minds to my Board to help drive change and support London's creative economy.

COVID-19 has had a devastating impact on culture and the creative and night time industries. Before the global pandemic and Brexit, the creative industries were the fastest growing sector of London's economy – worth £58 billion a year, accounting for one in six jobs and attracting four out of every five visitors to the capital and offering Londoners some of the best entertainment in the world – on their doorsteps. The creative and night time industries are vital to London and will continue to play a crucial role in our city's economic and social recovery from COVID-19.

I am building on the success of programmes like my Creative Enterprise Zones which will expand from six to 12 zones, with new initiatives such as my Creative Academy which will address skills shortages, develop talent and create opportunities to build back culture and creativity better than before. The rollout of Night Time Enterprise Zones, following the successful pilot in Waltham Forest, will support boroughs and businesses to trial innovative ways of diversifying their local night time offer. Cultural infrastructure has now been hardwired into the fabric of our city in the London Plan and is supporting the development of new infrastructure such as East Bank and ensures we retain the breadth of existing spaces used by Londoners and visitors alike. Existing cultural and community spaces continue to be supported through my expanded Culture and Community Spaces at Risk programme and, through the Commission for Diversity in the Public Realm, we are ensuring that our spaces better reflect the people who use them with grant programmes like Untold Stories.

Play your part in helping London's recovery after the pandemic and addressing the existing inequalities that have been laid bare these past few years. This is an exciting opportunity to use your skills, knowledge, and expertise to support our efforts to create a truly inclusive city where culture in all its diversity is fully represented.

This pack provides you with information about the roles and responsibilities of the Board and explains how you might get involved.

We look forward to receiving your application.

Yours sincerely,

Sadiq Khan
Mayor of London

Introduction

The Mayor is seeking additional members, known as Ambassadors, and a Vice Chair, to join his Cultural Leadership Board and help him deliver a bold and ambitious recovery plan for culture and the creative industries. He is looking for leaders who are passionate about arts, culture the creative industries and the night time economy and who can bring a range of insights and expertise.

Through the London Recovery Board, the Mayor and London Councils outlined their priorities for supporting the City's recovery following the COVID-19 pandemic. As well as addressing the existing health and social inequalities, the Mayor will continue to champion and fund programmes the support culture, the creative industries and the night time economy that in turn contribute significantly to the Capital's recovery outcomes.

We know that engaging with culture improves the health and wellbeing of Londoners, revitalises our neighbourhoods, brings communities together and offers young people a positive life path. Culture and the night time economy are playing a major role in London's economic and social recovery. However, there is lots to be done to ensure that the sector is becomes more resilient. Research showed that thousands of businesses and creatives were hard hit by COVID, with the sector facing a projected loss of £16.5bn in GVA and up to 152,500 job losses as a direct impact of the pandemic.

The Mayor is funding major programmes which continue to drive systemic change and are creating examples of best practice. His London Borough of Culture programme continues, with Lewisham hosting in 2022 and Croydon in 2023, enabling communities contribute to shaping culture on their doorstep. On the Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park, a £1.1bn investment in East Bank will bring a new academic and creative hub to London. The Mayor's Creative Enterprise Zones are nurturing creative skills and generating jobs in local communities, and the Creative Land Trust seed funded by the Mayor in partnership with Bloomberg Philanthropies, Arts Council England and Outset is ensuring that creative talent can remain in London.

The Mayor's Cultural Leadership Board will pool its skills and expertise to affect even more real change across London's arts and cultural, and night time landscape. Through advocacy Board will play a key role in supporting London's artists and creatives, embedding culture in the development of the capital and promoting the power of the arts to build stronger communities.

About the Mayor's Cultural Leadership Board

The Mayor's Cultural Leadership Board is a high-level statutory body appointed by the Mayor of London in accordance with the Greater London Authority (GLA) Act 1999¹. The Ambassadors on the Board advise the Mayor on emerging and ongoing issues facing the creative industries and culture sector which helps him to develop resilient policies and deliver impactful programmes of work.

Ambassadors help to bring deeper and wider opportunities to the Mayor's existing policies and programmes, extending their impact. Further information about the Mayor's role in supporting London's culture, creative industries and 24 Hr London can be found on the Mayor of London website.

Profiles of the existing Board members can be found on the Mayor's Cultural Leadership Board webpage.
